About Chiangmai Golf Courses

Summit Green Valley Chiangmai Country Club

One of Chiangmai's best kept courses, Summit Green Valley is a palm tree lined picturesque course set against the backdrop of the surrounding mountains and is difficult to par, especially from the tips at 7200 yards. The fairways seem wide, but the abundance of well-placed sand bunkers and lots of water at the landing areas come into play on nearly every hole. Narrow fairways then give way to large receptive greens that run from moderate to slightly fast. The most memorable hole is the 416 yard, par 4, 9th. Tee shots must carry over water to a landing area lined with sand traps on both sides. The 2nd shot is again over water to an elevated island green encircled by large palm trees. Course length, numerous elevation changes and prevailing winds makes Green Valley a tough but fair challenge to golfers of all skill levels. With its proximity to Chiangmai and availability of night golf, Green Valley is a popular choice for the golfer looking to play on the day of arrival or departure.

Alpine Golf Resort Chiangmai

Sister course to the much acclaimed Alpine in Bangkok, the Alpine Chiangmai holds its own; having won the Asian Tour award for best golf resort in 2013, it was also the chosen site of two Asian Tour events with the most recent being the Chiangmai Golf Classic 2014. Renowned as Chiangmai's best conditioned course, Alpine was carved out of the magnificence of the San Kampaeng natural forests and hills. Bring your best drive to the 524 yards par 4 eleventh hole which stretches to almost a par 5, made even more difficult by the hole doglegging to the left with water down the same side. At 7541 yards, Alpine Chiang Mai is a championship course that challenges the serious player while still offering the recreational golfer the pleasant experience of fresh country air and being close to nature.

About Chiangmai Golf Courses

Chiangmai Highlands Golf and Spa Resort

With its many accolades and awards including “Best Value For Money Golf Course in Asia” and the “Number One Course in Thailand” since opening in 2005, Chiang Mai Highlands is a must play that offers no excuses for the distraction of breathtaking views on each hole. The course itself offers a choice of 5 different tee boxes, presenting a challenge for a player of any level that culminates in a thrilling dramatic finish at the unforgettable 18th. Negotiating the deep and severely penalising hundred or so fairway and greenside bunkers as well as various water hazards requires thought, yet the firm, fast undulating greens are more than receptive to a well struck approach. Mostly sloping away from the fairway, green complexes feature closely mown areas that offer up a variety of short game options to pitch, chip or even putt from off the green, the only limit being the golfer’s imagination. With excellent amenities, Chiangmai Highlands Golf and Spa Resort bills itself as not only a golf destination, but a place of happiness for the entire family.

Designer:	Schmidt Curley Design
Course:	18 holes par 72 (7003 yards)

Royal Chiangmai Golf Club

Opened in 1996 and designed by five-time British Open champion Peter Thomson, Royal Chiangmai is one of the shorter courses at just 6969 yards. What it lacks in length though, it more than makes up for in features borrowed from British Parkland courses, something well suited to what was formerly the site of a fruit orchard. With its many flora and fauna, the very scenic Royal Chiangmai is heavily lined with mature trees and the rough is best kept away from, as are the lakes, streams and waterfalls that are in play on almost every hole. Links style inspired fairways are bumpy and gently rolling, with the golfer encountering more than the occasional pot bunker enroute to the deceptively short elevated greens surrounded by closely mown areas and more high-lipped sand traps. As can be expected, this is a course that rewards the accurate golfer more than the long hitter, yet still presents a pleasurable challenge to both beginners and the more avid player.

About Chiangmai Golf Courses

Mae Jo Golf Club

Local course architect Seni Thirawat took advantage of the natural terrain and spectacular surroundings in designing Mae Jo. Play it safe or take the risk-reward approach, each hole is designed to be unique and this course can be enjoyed by golfers of all abilities. Several elevated tee boxes provide panoramic views, and play onto rolling fairways and large contoured greens considered as one of the most challenging in this part of Thailand. Mae Jo features some prominent dog legs that will test the golfer's game as much as some of the water hazards and long par 5s. Close to an orchard, many local fruit-bearing trees such as longan, lychee, pomelo, and tangerine line the fairways for a unique tasting and golfing experience.
